MEDIA ADVISORY

Students and Workers Call for Financial Transparency and Accountability at Concordia

Students and workers are taking a united stance against the lack of financial transparency at Concordia University. Those impacted by the immediate and long-term ramifications of austerity measures will voice their frustrations with the university's lack of accountability to Concordians and the broader public. While the quality of education and student services has suffered in recent years due to larger class sizes, overworked TAs, and fewer support staff, higher administrators continue to receive increasingly extravagant salaries. Fed up with being routinely excluded from financial decision-making, students and workers are demanding real, meaningful consultation and clear, transparent financial justification prior to any further austerity measures.
